The "Biocities Forum" will take place on 14 November 2018. The event aims to promote international dialogue at the interface of science, politics and industry. The goal is to harness the potential of forestry and circular economy approaches to build sustainable, resilient cities. It will be about the following topics:

- "Holistic views on the future of cities and their role in leading sustainable change"
- "Wood engineering products for building construction"
- Innovative architectural solutions and vertical forests
